CIA - TODAY AND TOMORROW

The Office of Training will present the second running of "CIA - Today and Tomorrow," in Room 1A-07 Headquarters on 26, 27, and 28 June 1973.

The main objective of the course is to inform the participants about recent developments and future programs in the Agency and the Intelligence Community. Although intended for all personnel with 5 - 15 years experience, the Office of Training feels this course would be particularly helpful for those who have recently returned from overseas assignments; for those who have not attended any course dealing with Agency-wide activities within the past five years; and for employees whose present or proposed duties require a broader knowledge of Agency activities.

Included in the course content will be such topics as:

1. CIA's Role in the Intelligence Community Today
2. Issues Confronting:
 - a. The Intelligence Directorate of 2 ✓
 - b. The Directorate for Science & Technology
 - c. The Operations Directorate of 2 ✓
 - d. The Directorate for Management & Services
3. The Agency's Role in Combating the International Drug Problem
4. CIA Support of U.S. International Economic Policy
5. Current Agency Management Policies and Problems

Lectures and discussions will be conducted by senior Agency officials currently involved in the topics under discussion.
